

Assignee's Sale.

TUESDAY, JAN. 22, 1878.

All that certain Piece or Parcel of Land

Notice of Assignee's Sale of Real Estate...

Administrators' Sale of Real Estate

Notice of Administrators' Sale of Real Estate...

All that certain Piece or Parcel of Land

Notice of Assignee's Sale of Real Estate...

Auditor's Notice

Notice of Auditor's Office regarding estate matters...

Auditor's Notice

Notice of Auditor's Office regarding estate matters...

Auditor's Notice

Notice of Auditor's Office regarding estate matters...

Assignee's Notice

Notice of Assignee's Office regarding estate matters...

Administrators' Notice

Notice of Administrators' Office regarding estate matters...

Administrators' Notice

Notice of Administrators' Office regarding estate matters...

Stray Horse

Notice regarding a stray horse found in the area...

Notice

General notice regarding legal matters...

Stray

Notice regarding a stray animal found...

Office of the Protection

Notice from the Office of the Protection...

A. M. KIM, M. D., Physician

Medical notice from A. M. Kim, M.D.

BACK ON HIS ENGINE AGAIN.

JOHN D. MISSIMER.

"Whizzing along a mile in a minute... And getting all out of it, even as it is."

Tommy Malone was the engineer. Who watched the puffing load and clear.

A mile a minute and more they went, To beat the fastest train they meant.

The engine left when the strike came on— Never to leave with the ill-advised.

And they thundered down the road, A mile in a minute the speed they showed.

THE DEVIL-FISH.

A TRUE STORY OF THE INDIAN OCEAN.

"Hans, did you ever see an octopus?" "Not that I know of. I never heard tell of one, isn't it, sir?"

"We were lying at anchor off Batavia, after a longer trip than usual, and I was about to start for home."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"Well," I replied, "that is the scientific name; I dare say we should find them something else."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"That's him," said Hans, who had listened attentively.

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

have it, but I ain't fond of telling it to anybody. There's been some as doubted whether it were all true, and when a chap was laid as close as that, and that it goes agen him to have folks disbelieve what pretty nigh cost him his life."

"I quite understand that, Hans; but you've never told me an untruth yet and I don't believe you're going to begin now."

"The sea was as still as a pond, but very deep—there was no seeing to the bottom even in that clear water; but it looked so cool and pleasant that I thought I'd take a swim."

"I got out on to this ledge and stripped, and took a swim, and I was washing my face and hair, and I was washing my face and hair."

"It takes a long while telling, sir, but it wasn't ten seconds after I was out of the water before I was down by the stretcher."

"The skipper was a native, and we'd two weeks of it, and I was washing my face and hair, and I was washing my face and hair."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"Well," I replied, "that is the scientific name; I dare say we should find them something else."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"That's him," said Hans, who had listened attentively.

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

ing pole. It was not a very long one though, and the cave was high; so I did not trouble myself to get more than just enough to reach the top, and then I was all right; and then, feeling that I was still with a steady pull toward the sea, they did not drag hard; the creature seemed in no hurry—he knew he'd get it all his own way, and was willing to take his time. But, though the drag was no powerful, it never loosened the start, and, as I was clinging to the rock and get my elbows on a ledge and bear against it.

"How long I stayed there I don't know—it seemed hours and hours, but it couldn't have been long, not many minutes, I suppose—and all the time I was screaming as a woman might have done for the horror of it, when the light at the top of the hole and the sky and the waving grass were shut out by a heavy shadow."

"I told him as well as I could, for I was pretty hot beat, and the creature was pulling me with a heavy strain."

"I got out on to this ledge and stripped, and took a swim, and I was washing my face and hair, and I was washing my face and hair."

"It takes a long while telling, sir, but it wasn't ten seconds after I was out of the water before I was down by the stretcher."

"The skipper was a native, and we'd two weeks of it, and I was washing my face and hair, and I was washing my face and hair."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"Well," I replied, "that is the scientific name; I dare say we should find them something else."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"That's him," said Hans, who had listened attentively.

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

scram and how I tried to kick them off and get my leg free! I might just as well have tried to kick me off my skin; and close as my skin was to me, and easy but still with a steady pull toward the sea, they did not drag hard; the creature seemed in no hurry—he knew he'd get it all his own way, and was willing to take his time. But, though the drag was no powerful, it never loosened the start, and, as I was clinging to the rock and get my elbows on a ledge and bear against it.

"How long I stayed there I don't know—it seemed hours and hours, but it couldn't have been long, not many minutes, I suppose—and all the time I was screaming as a woman might have done for the horror of it, when the light at the top of the hole and the sky and the waving grass were shut out by a heavy shadow."

"I told him as well as I could, for I was pretty hot beat, and the creature was pulling me with a heavy strain."

"I got out on to this ledge and stripped, and took a swim, and I was washing my face and hair, and I was washing my face and hair."

"It takes a long while telling, sir, but it wasn't ten seconds after I was out of the water before I was down by the stretcher."

"The skipper was a native, and we'd two weeks of it, and I was washing my face and hair, and I was washing my face and hair."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"Well," I replied, "that is the scientific name; I dare say we should find them something else."

"There's bigger things in the sea than people think on, as Hans I seen it," replied Hans seriously.

"That's him," said Hans, who had listened attentively.

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

"Never mind that," I urged; "it can't hurt you now, you know."

"See it? Ah, and felt it, too?" "I felt it? By Jove, you ought to know the rights of it, then."

Some Ante-Nuptial Dangers.

Bad spellers are sufficiently common in this country not to be in very great demand and occasionally to bring reproach on our common school system.

A shortcoming of this character has brought a charming young lady of fifteen to grief. She had a lover who doted on her and prided himself on his learning.

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

"You have done what I cannot repeat, and your future is made from to-day."

"For a wonder, last night, I forgot the door quite."

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

"You have done what I cannot repeat, and your future is made from to-day."

"For a wonder, last night, I forgot the door quite."

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

"You have done what I cannot repeat, and your future is made from to-day."

"For a wonder, last night, I forgot the door quite."

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

THAT CASE.

To the yard, by the barn, came the farmer one morn'g, And looking the cattle, he said, "Now while they're fresh with their might, 'N'ow which of you has the right?"

"Now the little calf, Spot, was down in the lot; And the way the rest talked was a shame; For no one, night before, saw her shut up the door."

"But they said that she did all the same, For the horse made her take the blame, Said the boy (dapple gray), 'I was not up the wicket, 'N'ow I'm sure, 'Till I saw her there, 'N'ow that calf's got herself in a fix!"

"Why, of course we all know 'twas the wrong thing to do," Said the calf, "Of course," said the boy, "I'm sure, 'Till I saw her there, 'N'ow that calf's got herself in a fix!"

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

"You have done what I cannot repeat, and your future is made from to-day."

"For a wonder, last night, I forgot the door quite."

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

"You have done what I cannot repeat, and your future is made from to-day."

"For a wonder, last night, I forgot the door quite."

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."

"But I'm not quite so simple as that!" "The poor calf never knew what she was!"

"You have done what I cannot repeat, and your future is made from to-day."

"For a wonder, last night, I forgot the door quite."

"I'm sorry," cried the male, "some folks are not so good as they seem to be."